The Northern Kingdom

The Northern Kingdom are the so-called “Native Indian” tribes of the Nation of Israel, and the bible describes their physical features, as “a cake unturned” (Hos. 7:8). This is mainly because they had mixed themselves among the nations, which gives rise to their multiplicity in shades of color ranging from very light to very dark. The Northern Kingdom were already in the Americas, over a 1000 years before the birth of Christ. They predominately came to the Americas around 718 B.C. after they had served in the Assyrian captivity (2 Kings 17th chapter, and 2 Esdras 13:39-47). These are the indigenous people of North, Central, and South America along with Canada and the Caribbean islands.

Contrary to popular belief and what you been taught in school, Christopher Columbus was not the first to discover America as the Northern Tribes were already settled in North America when Christopher came to Americas. The truth is that Columbus had studied in 2 Esdras that the world was one part water and 6 parts land. Christopher Columbus also had read in his bible (before his voyage) that the children of Israel (Northern Tribes) had migrated to a further country over the waters, after the Assyrian captivity (Lost Tribes and the Promised lands pgs.77-80, II Esdras 13:39-47, 2 Kings 17:17-41). Thus, Christopher planned in 1492 to take a voyage to the new world, Americas and Caribbean Islands, in his pursuit regarding the new world and in hope to find the Northern Tribes Israelites.

Some lies and theories concerning the Native Indians include the Mongoloid deception that they are of East Asians (Mongoloids, Chinese) and not Israelites; the Bering Strait theory that the Native Indians migrated through the Bering Strait from Siberia (Russia) and are not the original inhabitants of the North America; and that terms like Asian, Oriental, and Asiatic always represents the Japheth people and not Shem people. These are untrue and for more readings concerning these lies may be found at www.gatheringofchrist.org.

A few records which document the history of the Native American Indians are: Lost Tribes and the Promise Lands by Ronald Sanders, American Holocaust by David E. Stannard, View of the Hebrews by Ethan Smith, along with many other historical references.

The Southern Kingdom

The Southern Kingdom, also known as the tribe of Judah, consists of the so-called “Negro” tribes of the Nation of Israel (Jer. 14:2), namely Judah, Benjamin and Levi. They predominately came from West Africa to America and the Caribbean islands by way of cargo slave ships (Deut. 28:68; Joel. 3:1-6). Large populations of Judah, Benjamin and Levi still exist in areas of Africa such as Morocco, Liberia, Ghana, Sierra Léon, Nigeria, Timbuktu, Ethiopia, Egypt, and many areas of Sub-Saharan Africa.

Before their disobedience to the Most High, these tribes remained in the land of Jerusalem until they were besieged by Vespasian and his son Titus of Rome in 70 AD. During the Roman’s siege, over a millions of Jews fled into Africa (see From Babylon to Timbuktu pg. 84; Luke 21:20-22; Revelation 12). They remained in Africa for about 1400 years before being found and sold by the Arabs and indigenous Hametic tribes into the hands of the predominately Jewish slave merchants (Read: Secret Relationship Between Blacks and Jews).

Here it is of the Southern Kingdom, also known as tribe of Judah, where the word “Jew” was first used (2 Kings 16:6, 25:25), and more commonly in the books of Ezra, Nehemiah and Esther. Initially, God’s chosen people were known as the Hebrews, and later known as the Israelites after they had settled in the Promised Land and became a nation. During their Babylonian captivity, they were referred to as Jew, which is a shortening for the word Judah. They were call Jew because Judah was dominant during their later stages of Babylon captivity and in their early stages of return to the land of Israel (Ezra and Nehemiah); yet the Northern tribes were still in exile to ‘Assyria. The word “Jew” came to be related to all the Israelites, particularly after Israel became a nation again. At that time, the dominance of the tribe of Judah’s return to the Promised Land resulted in the return all of the Israelites, people from all 12 of the tribes, being referred to as “Jews”. Generally speaking, people today use the term “Jew” to refer to “a person who is of the chosen people of Israel”. However, we know that many who are in Israel today or who called themselves Jews, they are not the real Jews or the chosen people of Israel according to the bible by blood lineage. They are converted Jews (the gentiles) or the synagogue of Satan (Revelation 2:9, 3:9). The true Israelites (or Jews we may say) by blood lineage of the Abrahamic promise, were taken captive from their Promised Land and later sold into slavery, mainly the Americas.

Many records have documented the history of the “Negro” tribes such as: From Babylon to Timbuktu by Rudolph R. Windsor, Hebrewism in West Africa by Joseph J. Williams, Judea Trembles Under Rome by Rudolph R. Windsor, Nature Knows No Color Line by J.A. Rodgers, along with many other historical records.
The 12 Lost Tribes Are Found

People of Color

The Hebrew Israelites are people of color.

Abraham, was a Hebrew as seen in Genesis 14:13. Archaeological discoveries have proven that the earliest inhabitants of southern Mesopotamia were members of the “Brown Race,” i.e., the Negroid branch of humanity.

Jacob (Israel) would never become white (Isa 29:22, Lam 5:10, Job 30:30, Gen 49)

Moses, a Hebrew of the tribe of Levi, raised as an Egyptian (black skin), ex 2:1-10, 19.
